

Above: Everything comes to a standstill after our goal, scored by Peter Osgood (almost obscured by No. 8, Tommy Baldwin) after a typical piece of by-line artistry by Charlie Cooke, who is seen right. Unfortunately one thing that did not stand still was the clock—less than two minutes later it was all over.

Left: The prelude to Arsenal's second goal. George Graham meets George Armstrong's corner, and a second header by Kennedy sent the ball into the net.
